

Get the L Out

David Alfred Bywaters (davidalfredbywaters.com)

ACROSS

1. Indian prince
6. Task
11. Italian frozen dessert
12. Like photographs taken from the sky
14. Scoundrel in full attire?
15. Untidy person's cry of sorrow?
17. Chill again
18. "My Gal ____"
19. Medical fluids
20. Otolaryngologist, briefly
21. Automatic Rorschach-test generator?
24. ____ Moines
25. Beginning of Hamlet's soliloquy, in Latin
27. Inlet
28. Authored
30. In awhile
33. Unheeding, as desperate pleas
34. Bivalve surveillance tool?
37. Custard cooler?
38. Chinese noodle dish
39. Japanese poem genre
40. Trophy, e.g.
41. Made acquaintance with
42. Stage item
46. Noun suffix suggesting belief or agency
47. Cabbage-shredding tool?
51. "Who do you think you ____?"
52. Fannie, Ginnie, and Sallie
54. Meditator's sounds
55. Decorative edging
57. Addition product in an economically challenged residential neighborhood?

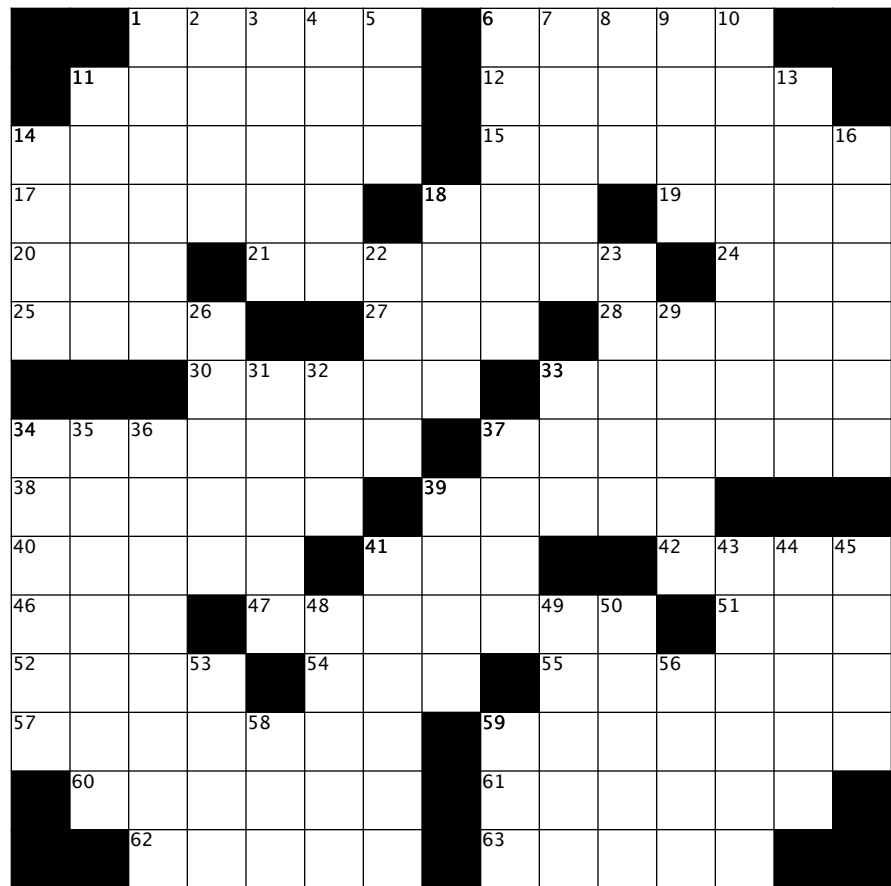

59. Bathroom of the Highlands?
60. Girl's nickname, an alternative to "Patty"
61. Sponsor
62. Pig homes
63. "Just the ____ day" (recently)

DOWN

1. Does something in consequence of something else
2. Gucci or Ray or Moro
3. Esau's slightly younger twin
4. To any extent
5. Brick and mortar conveying tool
6. Yellow melon
7. Greeting that became popular with the proliferation of the telephone

8. Spanish gold
9. Torso bones
10. Abated
11. Valleys
13. Classic movie actress Young whose given name was Gretchen
14. Plains Indian
16. Adapt, as a movie from a novel
18. Agitate with a spoon
22. Utah city
23. Nasal assault
26. Bugs Bunny's pursuer Fudd
29. Hoisted, as a flag
31. Stomach fluids
32. Lie in the sun with the purpose of altering one's skin color

33. 551
34. Avers
35. Like some healthy foods
36. Nonprofessionals
37. Waller or Domino
39. Cuts down
41. What Victorian girls call their female parents?
43. Spite
44. Church instrument
45. Back of a hammer
48. When doubled, name of a 1963 hit investigated for obscenity by the FBI
49. G Sharp
50. Anger
53. Struck
56. As to, in a memo heading
58. Biol. or Geog.
59. Naval rank, briefly

© 2018